Biological replacement is widely recommended in septic circumstances or situations of high probability of infection whenever autologous material is not available.

Speakers will be carefully selected to report experiences with different biologic replacement strategies in these vulnerable patients. Together we aim to encourage national and international collaboration and coordination of clinical studies.

All participants are welcome to contribute to our joined efforts.

Submissions of abstracts will be accepted until April 10th 2021 at vascular_surgery@meduniwien.ac.at.

We are looking forward to meeting you online!
